Why Prioritising Mental Health Training is a Game Changer for Your Organisation

In Australian workplaces, mental health is a key factor in your organisation's success. The pressures of modern life can lead to stress, burnout, and mental health conditions like depression and anxiety, which can significantly impact employee wellbeing, productivity, and retention.

Investing in mental health training is a proactive way to build a resilient and engaged workforce. These sessions provide your team with practical tools to handle stress, prevent burnout, and create a positive workplace culture. They also improve understanding and support for mental health issues, making it easier for everyone to contribute to a caring environment.

Why should your organisation invest in mental health training?

- 1. Boost Productivity: When employees are mentally healthy, they perform better. Training sessions like The Resilience Edge help your team develop resilience, manage stress, and maintain focus—leading to improved productivity and job satisfaction.
- 2. Reduce Absenteeism and Turnover: Burnout and untreated mental health issues are leading causes of absenteeism and employee turnover. Providing your team with the tools to prevent burnout and manage their mental health helps create a more stable and committed workforce.
- 3. Create a Positive Workplace Culture: Understanding mental health and having open, stigma-free conversations are key to a supportive work culture. Training sessions like Depression Awareness and Understanding and Managing Vicarious Trauma promote a culture of empathy and support, which boosts morale and team cohesion.
- 4. Mitigate Risks: Ignoring mental health can lead to significant risks, including reduced performance, increased errors, and even legal liabilities. Proactively addressing these issues through tailored training can help mitigate these risks, protecting both your employees and your organisation.
- 5. Empower Leadership: Programs like the Employee Assistance Program (EAP) / Manager Assistance Program (MAP) Awareness give leaders the skills to identify and address mental health concerns early, ensuring timely and effective support for their teams.
- 6. Support Long-Term Wellbeing: The long-term wellbeing of employees is essential for ongoing success. Training in Positive Psychology and Change Mastery equips your team with the skills needed to cope and thrive, ensuring your organisation remains agile and resilient in the face of change.

Investing in mental health training equips your team with the tools to create a supportive workplace. The benefits extend beyond individual wellbeing – improved performance, reduced risks, and a positive culture that attracts and retains top talent.

Change Mastery:

Thriving in a World of Uncertainty

In a world where change is a constant, resisting it can hamper our health, wellbeing, and performance. This session delves into typical reactions to change and offers practical strategies for adapting to today's unpredictable landscape. Participants will gain actionable tools and insights to cultivate a change-ready mindset, empowering them to not just cope, but thrive amid transformation.

Join us for a transformative session where you'll learn to embrace change, adapt with agility, and thrive in an ever-evolving world.

Depression Awareness:

Managing Depression with Confidence

One in five Australians will experience depression at some point in their lives. Gain insights into the intricate brain processes linked to depression and acquire vital skills for fighting stigmas and fostering open, empathetic conversations when you join this webinar. Explore effective coping strategies and self-care techniques to help people with depression on their path to recovery, while delving into a variety of treatment options, including therapy, medication, and lifestyle adjustments. Plus, learn how to be a constant source of support for loved ones who are struggling with depression.

Embracing Positive Wellbeing:

Fundamentals of Positive Psychology

Maintaining focus on crucial priorities like happiness and wellbeing is increasingly challenging. This training session delves into the fundamentals of Positive Psychology to help you achieve optimal satisfaction in life. Participants will have the opportunity to reflect on their core values and align their actions with what truly matters. By exploring practical strategies, you'll learn how to cultivate a positive mindset and enhance your overall wellbeing. This session emphasises understanding and applying Positive Psychology principles to foster happiness and life satisfaction.

Join us to discover how aligning your actions with your values and leveraging your strengths can lead to a more fulfilling and joyful life. Embrace the opportunity to nurture your positive wellbeing and achieve lasting happiness.

*Also included in the Altius Group Wellbeing Webinar Series – 4 December 2025

Employee Assistance Program (EAP) Awareness / Manager Assistance Program (MAP) Awareness

Your Employee Assistance (EAP) and Manager Assistance (MAP) Programs are a significant investment in the wellbeing of your people. It is important that your people understand how to access these programs, and what they will experience, to maximise your return on this investment.

Short EAP and MAP awareness sessions are provided virtually, or in-person, for groups of staff and people leaders. These are an opportunity to bust some EAP/MAP service myths, weaken the stigma attached to mental health issues, clarify the support on offer and encourage proactive help seeking. Session duration is tailored to suit your operational requirements (usually 10-30 minutes long).

Menopause and Mental Health: Understanding the Hidden Impact

Menopause is a natural part of life, yet its impact—especially on mental health—is often overlooked. This webinar will provide a deep dive into the phases and symptoms of menopause, examining how hormonal shifts can affect mood, cognitive function, and overall wellbeing. Join us to gain insights into:

- The biology of menopause and its common symptoms
- The connection between menopause and mental health, including links to depression and anxiety
- Strategies for managing symptoms through lifestyle changes, workplace accommodations, and available therapies
- The biopsychosocial impact of menopause on quality of life, work, and relationships

With practical guidance on recognising symptoms and finding support, this session aims to empower individuals to navigate the menopause journey with confidence. Perfect for anyone seeking to better understand the unique challenges of this life stage.

This session will cover what workplace bullying and harassment looks like and its impacts, examples of covert and overt behaviours and distinguishing between upstanding and bystander behaviours. This session aims to upskill participants with the knowledge, strategies and tools to intervene effectively and create a safer, more respectful work environment.

Getting the Job Done:

Optimising Information & Resources to Cope with Job Demands

Addressing job demands, lack of role clarity and low job control

In this session, participants will deepen their understanding of the psychosocial hazard of job demands and job control. We will explore efficient techniques to optimise information handling and resource management for meeting job demands, as well as ways that employees can enhance job control where possible. By the end of this session, participants will be better prepared to handle tasks effectively and maintain a balanced approach to their professional responsibilities.

Recognise, Reward, and Rise:

The Path to Organisational Fairness

Addressing inadequate reward and recognition, and poor organisational justice

Join us to enhance your understanding of the impacts of recognition and reward efforts in the workplace and how these impact perceived organisational fairness and justice. In this session, we will be exploring the importance of rewards and recognition in organisations today, the impacts of these on perceived organisational justice, and how employers can enhance these fundamental components in the workplace.

Sail Through Change:

Navigating Organisational Transitions

Addressing poor organisational change management

In a continually changing world, organisations go through changes too. In this session, participants will explore the impacts of organisational change on employees, what poor organisational change management looks like, and some early warning signs that someone isn't coping well with change. Participants will take away some practical insights and strategies to thrive amidst change, fostering adaptability and resilience within dynamic working environments.

Thriving in Isolation:

Mastering Remote and Isolated Work

Addressing remote or isolated work

Equip employees with the knowledge and skills to thrive in remote and isolated work. In this session participants will dive into understanding what makes remote and isolated work a psychosocial hazard, the impacts of this line of work on employees, and provides some practical steps for both employees and employers in maintaining collaboration and connection.

United We Stand:

Supporting Ourselves and Each Other at Work

Addressing poor support

Empower employees to contribute actively to a psychosocially safe work environment by understanding the nuances of psychosocial hazards. This session covers recent Australian legislation affecting employees, delineates employee responsibilities, and offers practical steps for cultivating a positive workplace atmosphere. Participants will also gain insights into reporting hazards, understanding the process, and leveraging available support structures to foster a culture of well-being and resilience.

Training Topics – Work Health and Safety

Due Diligence

This training will provide officers and senior managers with the knowledge necessary to effectively exercise their positive duty of care and manage safety in the working environment. Participants will learn the tools to interpret and apply due diligence, as well as develop an understanding of key elements of relevant safety legislation, including risk management, consultation, and incident notification, and the importance of positive safety performance.

WHS for Supervisors and Managers

Managers and supervisors within any organisation have a responsibility to understand and implement Work Health and Safety legislation and requirements. This ensures staff are working within a safe work environment.

Participants will gain a thorough understanding of the legal requirements associated with WHS, as well as the significance of implementing comprehensive WHS policies and frameworks within an organisation.

Risk Management Training

All business decisions involve some level of uncertainty or risk. Risk management is the continuing workplace process that identifies, assesses, and controls all reasonably foreseeable hazards and risks.

This training session will guide participants in creating, implementing, and evaluating a risk management strategy that supports their organisational objectives and ensures the minimisation of risk. Participants will become competent in identifying and managing risk while applying risk management processes and coordinating a risk management strategy.

Hazard and Incident Management Training

Incident investigations identify the root cause of an event enabling control measures to be put in place to avoid further incidents. By collecting incident information and analysing it within a risk management process everyone can learn and improve safety practices.

This training provides an overview of the legal requirements when reporting and investigating incidents. It will provide participants with the skills and knowledge required to plan, conduct, and report on investigations of work health and safety (WHS) incidents that have the potential to, or have resulted in, injury or damage.

Injury Management for Supervisors and Managers

Managing injuries within the workplace benefits everyone. Workers with an injury see their prospects of recovering and returning to their former lifestyle maximised, employers retain experienced workers, productivity is restored swiftly, and claim costs are reduced.

This training will assist participants to appropriately manage workplace injuries and worker's compensation claims in order to achieve a prompt, safe and durable return to work for a worker with an injury, ideally into their pre-injury employment.

WHS Committee Training

Health and Safety Committees (HSCs) allow organisations to work together with workers on health and safety matters and ensures genuine representation and consultation occurs at all levels of an organisation.

Participants will gain the necessary skills and knowledge to be an effective member of the Health and Safety Committee (HSC) under the WHS Act 2011, to develop better safety standards and practices in their workplace.

Ergonomics Training

Enhance workplace health and productivity with our professional Ergonomics Training program. Designed for employees at all levels, this comprehensive training equips participants with the skills to identify and address ergonomic risks, fostering a safer and more efficient work environment. Using sound ergonomic principles, these strategies can promote workplace health, minimise injury risk, boost productivity and morale, and decrease staff turnover and absenteeism. Led by experienced allied health professionals, the program covers critical topics such as workstation optimisation, general health and wellbeing and proper lifting techniques through interactive and practical learning.

Ergonomics Train the Trainer

Elevate your organisation's ergonomic standards with our professional Ergonomics Train the Trainer program. This advanced training is designed for HR professionals, safety managers, and team leaders, equipping them with the expertise to identify and mitigate ergonomic risks across the workplace. Led by allied health professionals, the program offers a comprehensive curriculum that covers critical topics such as workstation optimisation and manual handling techniques through interactive and practical learning.

Manual Task Training

Are you managing your employees' risk? With over a third of workplace injuries associated with manual tasks, we guide employees through best practice for lifting, carrying, pushing, pulling or holding a load, object or person. Training plays a key role in protecting workers from harm associated with manual tasks that are part of getting the job done. This training is tailored to cover duties specific to each workplace.

Training for the Personal Injury Sector

Optimising Recovery and Return to Work: Tailored Solutions for Insurer Partners

In the context of injury recovery and return-to-work processes, insurers have an important responsibility in facilitating optimal outcomes for both employers and employees. These targeted training sessions are intended to provide teams with the necessary tools, knowledge, and strategies to handle complex claims, assist with recovery and return-to-work planning, and address emerging issues such as long COVID.

Why these training sessions are essential for your insurer teams:

- 1. Comprehensive Understanding of ADL Assessments: Activities of Daily Living (ADL) Assessment and ADL Screening Tool for Remote Areas sessions equip participants with a deep understanding of how ADL assessments can significantly enhance an individual's post-injury recovery. These sessions focus on assessing functional abilities and providing remote support, ensuring that every claim is managed with precision and care.
- 2. Strengthening Communication Techniques for Claims Managers: The Optimising Communication Skills for Claims Managers session equips claims managers with essential communication skills to build rapport, diffuse tense situations, and navigate difficult conversations with confidence. It offers actionable takeaways, including recommended phrases, real-life case studies, and self-care strategies for after challenging interactions.
- 3. Engaging Healthcare Providers in the Return-to-Work Process: Engaging GPs in Return to Work offers practical strategies for insurers to effectively collaborate with General Practitioners. By strengthening these partnerships, insurers can ensure smoother communication, timely recovery, and successful return-to-work outcomes.
- 4. Leveraging Technology for Vocational Assessments: FuturePathways® training introduces participants to a cutting-edge vocational and career matching platform, guiding individuals toward meaningful employment aligned with their skills and injury considerations. This session showcases how insurers can leverage technology to deliver accurate insights and support career transitions.
- 5. Navigating Psychological Claims: Managing Primary and Secondary Psychological Claims sessions delve into the complexities of psychological injuries. Insurers will gain skills to confidently manage these claims, improving outcomes and supporting a safe return to work for those affected.
- 6. Addressing Emerging Health Concerns: The Navigating Long COVID training provides critical insights into the long-term impacts of COVID-19 on workplace health and wellbeing. This session equips insurers with the knowledge to support workplaces in managing the multifaceted challenges posed by long COVID.

7. Understanding the Role of Rehabilitation Providers: Introduction to the Role of a Workplace Rehabilitation Provider and Understanding and Managing Complex Claims offer a foundational and advanced understanding of how Workplace Rehabilitation Providers contribute to successful return-to-work outcomes. These sessions are ideal for insurers seeking to deepen their expertise in managing complex claims using a biopsychosocial approach.
8. Early Intervention for Optimal Recovery: Optimising Workplace Rehabilitation and Early Intervention for Sustainable Return to Work highlights the importance of early planning and support in injury recovery, focusing on best practices in workplace rehabilitation. This session provides insurers with insights into how early intervention can lead to better health outcomes and faster, sustainable return-to-work processes.
9. Maximising the Role of Allied Health Professionals: The Essential Role of Allied Health in Recovery and Return to Work session emphasises the critical contributions of allied health professionals across various disciplines. Insurers will learn how these professionals' expertise can be harnessed to support comprehensive rehabilitation and successful return-to-work outcomes.
10. Clarifying Assessment Processes: Understanding Independent Medical Examinations and Fitness for Duty Assessments provides a clear overview of these vital assessments. This session ensures insurers are well-prepared to navigate these evaluations and support their clients effectively.
11. Ensuring Safe and Sustainable Work Environments: Workplace Assessments training teaches insurers how to identify and address workplace health issues. By understanding the role of these assessments, insurers can contribute to creating safe, ergonomic, and supportive work environments, facilitating smoother return-to-work processes for both physical and psychological injuries.

These training sessions are intended to give your insurer teams the fundamental skills and useful resources they need to effectively manage the rehabilitation and return-to-work processes. By investing in these training programs, you are improving the knowledge of your team while also contributing to the overall health, wellbeing, and productivity of the workplaces you support.

All training modules are suitable for claims staff and IMA's working in the personal injury sector across workers compensation, life and CTP insurance.

Training Topics – Personal Injury Sector: Skills

Role of a Workplace Rehabilitation Provider – Introduction

Workplace Rehabilitation Providers (WRPs) are a vital component of supporting someone back to work following injury or illness. Participants who are new to the industry will develop an understanding of the role of a WRP and how this can support their role and a worker in the achievement of a return to work.

Role of a Workplace Rehabilitation Provider – Understanding and Managing Complex Claims

In this training, participants will learn how to navigate and manage complex claims. The training will teach how to apply a biopsychosocial framework to understanding claims and the risk of long-term disability due to injury, and once these risks have been identified, which services and interventions are best suited to address these risks. This training is ideally suited for those that have been managing claims for at least 6 months.

Optimising Communication Skills for Claims Managers

Enhance your communication toolkit with this practical webinar designed specifically for claims managers. In this session, you'll learn how to:

- Build rapport with claimants over the phone
- Diffuse situations when a claimant becomes distressed, irritable, or angry
- Navigate difficult conversations with confidence
- Practise self-care strategies after challenging interactions

Packed with actionable takeaways, including recommended phrases and real-life case studies relevant to your scheme, this session equips you with the skills to handle even the most demanding conversations effectively.

Optimising Workplace Rehabilitation and Early Intervention for Sustainable Return to Work

This session focuses on best practices in workplace rehabilitation, emphasising strategies to achieve return-to-work outcomes. Participants will explore the health benefits of good work, which include improved overall health and wellbeing, reduced long-term work absences, and enhanced productivity. Additionally, the training covers the advantages of early intervention in return-to-work planning, highlighting its role in facilitating safe and sustainable return to work after injury or illness.

Engaging GP's in Return to Work

Throughout the return-to-work process, GPs play a central role in managing an injured worker's health and wellbeing. Having a GP who is actively engaged in the process can assist with a safe and timely recovery and return to work. However, GPs high caseloads and limited availability can often make them difficult to reach and challenging to communicate with. This training provides practical tips and strategies to effectively communicate with GPs and engage them in the return-to-work process.

Managing Primary Psychological Claims and Secondary Psychological Claims

Recovering from a psychological or secondary psychological injury can be complex. This training focuses on navigating and supporting individuals recovering from psychological or secondary psychological injuries. Participants will learn skills to improve their confidence when dealing with psychological claims and the services available to support return to work. Through a blend of theory and actionable tools, participants will develop the skills to positively contribute to improved outcomes.

Workplace Assessments

Workplace Assessments identify an individual's specific health issues and potential sources of symptom elevation. This enables our rehabilitation consultants to provide confirmation of appropriate work duties and make specific recommendations, such as advice on correct working postures, ergonomic postures and safe working principles. During this training, participants build an understanding of what a Workplace Assessment is, and how it can be used to support a safe and sustainable return to work for both physical and psychological injuries.

The Essential Role of Allied Health in Recovery and Return to Work

Allied health professionals serve as indispensable pillars in the comprehensive journey of an individual's recovery and successful reintegration into the workforce post-injury, illness, or disability. Their multifaceted roles span various disciplines, encompassing occupational therapy, physiotherapy, speech pathology, psychology, exercise physiology and beyond. Their collective expertise is instrumental in addressing the intricate needs of individuals undergoing rehabilitation.

This training session aims to explore the important role of allied health professionals in the holistic process of recovery and return to work. This session will demonstrate how these experts enable individuals to regain autonomy, function, and a sense of purpose, fostering a successful transition back to work and an engaged life.

Navigating Long COVID:

Understanding Impacts on Health and Wellbeing in the Workplace

This training is dedicated to unraveling the complexities of long COVID and its profound effects on individuals' health and wellbeing within the workplace. Long COVID, characterised by persistent symptoms long after the acute phase of COVID, presents significant challenges for both employees and employers.

Participants will gain a deeper understanding of the diverse array of challenges posed by long COVID, spanning physical, cognitive, and mental health symptoms, and examine their implications for workplace productivity and wellbeing. Our expert consultant will provide valuable insights into recognising and addressing the multifaceted impacts of long COVID on individuals' capacity to work effectively.

Furthermore, we will explore proactive strategies and best practices for workplaces to support employees grappling with long COVID, fostering an inclusive and supportive environment conducive to recovery and optimal performance.

Participants will gain essential knowledge and practical guidance for navigating the complexities of long COVID in the workplace, as we strive to promote understanding and resilience in the face of this evolving health challenge.

Understanding Independent Medical Examinations and Fitness for Duty Assessments

The purpose of this training is to provide an overview of Independent Medical Examinations (IME) and Fitness for Duty (FFD) assessments. We will discuss the differences between these two types of assessments, when each might be appropriate, and what to expect in a report. This training will also address how to prepare the client for the evaluation.

Training Topics – Personal Injury Sector: Service

Activities of Daily Living (ADL) Assessment

ADL Assessments measure an individual's level of functional ability with consideration to their performance of self-care tasks, domestic maintenance and general community mobility.

During this training, participants develop an understanding of ADL Assessments and how they can be of benefit following surgery or injury.

Activities of Daily Living (ADL) Screening Tool for Remote Areas

This screening tool has been designed to provide a fast and effective service to claims agents, enabling them to provide support to workers with an injury, who are either about to undergo surgery or have recently undergone surgical procedures. Experienced Occupational Therapists triage the screening tool results, ensuring swift and efficient overview of an individual's capacity to independently perform essential self-care activities that safely maintain independence and quality of life.

Future Pathways®

Rehabilitation Services by Altius conducts Vocational Assessments using FuturePathways, an innovative, digitally supported vocational and career matching assessment platform.

The interactive platform guides those requiring vocational, redeployment or outplacement support by accurately matching them to the best, most suitable careers. We utilise FuturePathways Vocational and Career Matching platform, along with the expertise and coaching experience of our consultants, to deliver accurate insights into a client's future potential and support them in finding meaningful employment matching their values, interests, skill-set and motivational drivers, which reflect any injury considerations. This training explains how Rehabilitation Services by Altius uses FuturePathways to facilitate return to work outcomes.

Specialist Medical Training

Understanding Independent Medical Examinations

These medico-legal training sessions, led by highly respected specialists in their respective fields, are designed to provide in-depth insights and practical knowledge on complex medical and legal issues. Tailored for a medico-legal audience, each session focuses on critical topics that frequently arise in litigation, offering participants a detailed understanding of medical conditions, diagnostic challenges, treatment protocols, and the medico-legal implications of these factors.

Hip Cases: Medicolegal Issues and Pitfalls

Dr Jeremy Bartlett

Orthopaedic Surgeon, Dr Jeremy Bartlett discusses the potential issues with hip joint replacements, including leg length discrepancy; post-operative infection; and ill-fitting prosthetics. It includes guidelines on potential prophylactics including TED stocking and anticoagulant therapy.

Patient Retrievals and Transfers: Responsibilities and Realities

A/Prof Luke Lawton

Professor Luke Lawton, director of A&E in a tertiary QLD hospital and Head of Aeronautical Medical Transfers, discusses the challenges and logistics in patient transfer and retrieval by road and air.

Shoulder Injuries – Conservative Treatment Opposed to Surgery – What Is the Best Course of Management and What Leads to Poor Outcomes from Each

Dr Ash Moaveni

Orthopaedic Surgeon, Dr Ash Moaveni discusses the best course of management for shoulder injuries, including surgery and non-invasive treatments. Factors that are covered include the benefits of early diagnosis and treatment; the duration periods for viable shoulder surgery; and the patient's circumstances including age and mobility.

The Emergency Department Triage System, Where Things Can Go Wrong

A/Prof Luke Lawton

Professor Luke Lawton, director of A&E in a tertiary QLD hospital, discusses the guidelines surrounding triaging and the process of patient categorisation. Potential issues arise if patients are not seen within the recommended and regulated timeframe for their category, impacting the medico-legal response.

The Immunocompromised and COVID, Biases in Medicine Leading to Poor Outcomes

A/Prof Nada Hamad
